Republicanism as it Is.

It is with surprise and gratification we notice a fair and honorable defence of the true position of the Republican Party, in a St. Louis Evening News and Intelligencer a few days ago, stated that the Republican Party of the free States were occupying the ground on slavery that Thomas JEFFERson and HENRY CLAY occupied; that "they oppose slavery in the abstract, as an undesirable social and political institution-they are opposed to its extension over new it is." The News then quotes from the speech of Hon. A. Liscoln, delivered at Chicago, in which he clearly defines his position of hostility to the extension of alavery, and gives an emphatic denial of any right or inclination on the part of the people of the free States to enter into the slave slavery there.
